Jobman named deputy secretary of state for business services

LINCOLN – Judy A. Jobman, Buffalo County clerk, will become deputy secretary of state for business services on Jan. 1, according to Nebraska Secretary of State John Gale.

Jobman has worked in the clerk’s office for 19 years, including eight years as the elected clerk.

She will succeed Debbie Pester, who is moving to Wyoming. Pester has been with the Secretary of State’s Office for 27 years.

The Business Services Division registers business entities, trademarks and trade names; records Uniform Commercial Code and other security-interest filings; oversees notary commissions and document authentication; and operates the Address Confidentiality Program for domestic-abuse victims.

“Judy Jobman has a wealth of experience in county government that will serve the public well in her new position,” Gale said. “We are delighted that she will be joining our management team.”
