Secretary of State hires new business services manager

LINCOLN – The Secretary of State's office has announced the hiring of a new manager for its Business Services Division.

Ann Hinkle comes to Nebraska from Topeka, Kansas where she was formally employed by the Kansas Department of Revenue, Alcoholic Beverage Control Division. She was operations manager and public service executive.

"Ann is a perfect fit for our rapidly changing Business Services Division," said Secretary of State John Gale. "Her experience with hands-on management, customer service, budget development, information technology and online services will greatly benefit our efforts to give our customers fast, efficient, and accurate service."

The Business Services Division handles registrations for corporations, limited liability companies, limited partnerships, limited liability partnerships, trade names and trademarks. The division records security interest filings, including Uniform Commercial Code and agricultural liens. It also regulates notary public commissions and issues apostilles and authentications.

"I'm happy to be returning to my home state to join Secretary Gale's team where our division will focus on providing effective customer services to the citizens and businesses of Nebraska," said Hinkle

Hinkle graduated from Panhandle State University in Goodwell, Oklahoma with a bachelor's degree in business administration. She has a master's degree from Baker University in Baldwin City, Kansas in business management.
