Election fraud unit formed, ready for any calls

Lincoln – There's one phone number Nebraska voters may want to keep handy as they head to the polls on Election Day. Secretary of State John Gale says it is the number to the state's election fraud hotline. As in previous statewide elections, Gale is announcing the formation of a unit for the purpose of investigating voter complaints.

"We strive in Nebraska to have the most secure election system available. If anyone sees or hears of something that shouldn't be happening, then my office wants to know about it."

People can call toll free (888) 727-0007 or (402) 471-2555 to report complaints.

All complaints are handled in a confidential manner. If the election fraud unit determines that a complaint is credible, it is forwarded to the proper local, state or federal law enforcement agency for possible prosecution.

"The good news is that we receive very few complaints related to election fraud here in Nebraska, but if there are any we want to make sure they are handled in the appropriate and lawful way," explained Gale.
