Election Integrity Unit ready to take calls on May 15

LINCOLN – Voters who spot irregular or inappropriate behavior at their polling place, are encouraged to call the Secretary of State’s office on Election Day. Sec. John Gale says staff members will be standing by on May 15, ready to handle any complaints.

“Previously, the purpose was to field complaints specifically about election fraud or voting irregularities,” said Gale. “But over the years, we have taken calls on a variety of situations which voters thought were important and might warrant additional investigation.”

Anyone wishing to report a problem can call toll free 888-727-0007 or 402-471-2555.

Complaints are handled confidentially. If a complaint is deemed to be credible and warranting further investigation, it will be forwarded to the proper local, state or federal law enforcement agency.

“We have always taken pride in the fact that elections in Nebraska are carried out in a very reliable, accurate and transparent manner. Having this unit in place ensures that issues are handled appropriately and are resolved in a way that provides confidence to our voters.”
