Gale reminds voters of in-person registration and early voting request deadlines

LINCOLN – Secretary of State John Gale reminded voters today that in-person voter registration continues through next Friday, October 26th.

“State law mandates that online voter registration end on October 19th, but in-person registration at your county clerk or election office continues until October 26th,” Gale said. “On October 26th all county election offices will be open until 6 p.m. local time.”

October 26th is also the final day that a voter may request an early voting ballot be mailed to their home. Any registered voter may receive an early voting ballot with no reason given for their request.

“Voting by mail continues to be a tremendous option for Nebraskans who wish to vote early, or who simply wish to exercise their important right to have their voice heard at a time that is more convenient for them,” added Gale. To date, more than 129,000 registered voters have requested to vote early by mail or in person.

Gale added, “So, if you haven’t registered yet or you still want to cast an early ballot, the race can still be won. Finish the race and be a proud voter. Keep our democracy strong.”

Citizens who wish to register to vote in-person may find the location of their county clerk or election office at the following link: <http://www.sos.ne.gov/elec/clerks.html>, and registered voters who wish to vote early may find the early voting form here: http://www.sos.ne.gov/elec/ele_forms.html
